SIP Print Certification Program Ensures Compatibility and Quality SIP Call Recording

By Tim Gray, TMCnet Web Editor

Earlier this year, SIP-based VoIP call recording platform provider SIP Print formed a separate organization and associated certification program designed to test and verify interoperability between various VoIP phone systems and its call recording system.

The testing outfit, called SIP Print (News - Alert) Labs, offers a certification that helps SIP Print work with IP-PBX vendors, customers, and channel partners to define standards of interoperability and performance for call recording applications on SIP-based phone systems.

Today, the company announced that IP phone systems developer Allworx has completed the SIP Print Labs program testing for its 6x and 24x lineup of phones and network systems.

"This certification is a best-of-breed pairing that maximizes Allworx (News - Alert) quality with SIP call recording solutions," said Jeff Howe, president of Allworx.

The certification enables Allworx to deliver SIP standards and interoperability with SIP Print's call recording solutions for IP-based phone systems.

The Allworx 6x system is an all-in-one communication system integrating a feature-rich phone system, advanced IP phones and powerful software features that substantially improve any company's productivity while reducing ongoing monthly costs.

"SIP Print Labs certification ensures customers that the investments they are making in Allworx' high performance infrastructure today will support the IP telephony solutions they demand now and in the future," said Howe.

The Allworx 24x supports up to 150 users and integrates T1/PRI capability to delivers cost savings and reliability, according to Howe.

Howe said it is an important step to be a "part of the SIP Print Labs certified family of interoperable, business-critical communications solutions."

At the same time, the Allworx 6x – designed for companies with up to 60 users – operates as an all-in-one communication system integrating a feature-rich phone system, advanced IP phones. It incorporates software features designed to improve productivity while reducing monthly costs.
